Ghazipur -Gharauli Mahila Panchayat

The Mahila Panchayat Programme currently being supported by 'Azim Premji Foundation' assumes great relevance as an alternate justice delivery system for women. Innovative and unique in many ways this programme ensures cost-effective, hassle-free and speedy delivery of justice, almost at the doorstep of women in distress.

Mahila Panchayat is a collective strength of selected community women in leading roles, to resolve the problems of domestic violence in their area. This Panchayat takes up the cases of domestic violence and local disputes, resolves these problems through hearings and counselling and assists in reducing violence in that locality. The programme has been successfully solving cases involving women in distress and making them aware of their rights provided within the Law.

The program aims to strengthen community-based mechanisms for addressing gender-based violence, increasing legal awareness, and linking vulnerable families to welfare schemes provided by the Government of Delhi. The program currently reaches approximately 4,000 families through regular awareness sessions, counseling support, and community engagement activities. The overall objective is to empower women to become self-reliant, aware of their rights, and capable of addressing social and domestic challenges.

Process of Mahila Panchayat: Mahila Panchayat is formed with the 25-30 women leaders identified through nukkad meetings in the area. These women leaders known as Mahila Panchayat members are trained for case hearing and counselling of the violence survivors. Gender sensitization and legal awareness trainings are also being conducted with them to enhance their capabilities and build gender perspective.

Nukkad Meeting:

Whenever we go to the area and contact women door to door, they tell us that fights always happen between men and women, but mostly women have to tolerate them. On this ideology of women, we advise them that there are many types of domestic violence and it is not necessary that there should be a situation of assault only then we will call it domestic violence. If any member of the family mentally harasses a woman and taunts her over small things, then this also comes under the category of domestic violence.

Street-level awareness meetings (nukkad meetings) were regularly organized to increase legal literacy among women. Approximately 80 meetings were conducted, reaching 2,040 women. These sessions focused on domestic violence laws, women's rights, police procedures, child protection laws, and gender equality. Many participants reported that they were previously unaware of these protections, and the meetings helped them better understand how to access legal and institutional support.

People are told through meetings that many laws have been made in the interest of women, but due to lack of knowledge about those laws, women are never able to avail the benefits, hence we educate them through small street meetings. -In between, they keep giving information about all types of laws and also make them aware of government schemes so that they can understand their rights and try to avail the same.

Nukkad Meetings

Mahila Panchayat Meeting

Weekly Mahila Panchayat meetings were conducted with approximately 30 active members. These meetings created a platform for discussing community issues, strengthening leadership among women, and reviewing registered cases. Around 30–40 meetings were held during the reporting period. Members were trained to identify domestic violence, intervene safely, and connect victims with appropriate services.

In Mahila Panchayat programme, meetings are held once a week with the members of Mahila Panchayat. During this meeting, we talk to women on various topics and give them information about all types of laws. These women celebrate national and religious festivals together to spread the message that there should be no discrimination on the basis of caste and religion. For any awareness programme or rally the woman of Mahila panchayat play their unique role. Total 47 panchayat meetings were organized this year.

Case Hearing / Case Proceedings

Our paralegal workers and community mobilizers are creating regular awareness in communities. As a result of the awareness campaigns carried out by the paralegal workers in the area, more and more women affected by domestic violence are coming forward to register their cases in Mahila panchayat. First of all, after hearing patiently to the victim, we take the written complaint from her and register the case of gender-based violence. Once registration is completed, a notice letter is sent to Respondent, (i.e. In laws, husband, parents) informing them to appear for the hearing. The hearings are held once a week, every Wednesday. During the hearing, both parties are present and present their respective sides. After arguments and discussions, cases are resolved with a written consent letter signed by both parties. The counseling approach emphasized mutual respect, safety, and long-term conflict resolution within families. In cases of serious nature, referrals were made to appropriate legal and institutional authorities. Total 20 cases that require legal action are referred to the local police station and other concerned departments. The Women's Panchayat team also follows up on these cases from time to time to stay updated on their status. This is important because, due to lack of information, victims are sometimes unable to make appropriate decisions.

In some cases, upon the written request of the victim, further action is stopped and the case is closed by the Women's Panchayat.

During this year, a total of 250 domestic violence cases were registered, including some maintenance from husband cases. With the support of the Mahila Panchayat, 102 cases have been resolved. Many victims received financial assistance from their husbands and later visited the office to express their gratitude. Some cases were referred to the police station, some were closed, and some are still under process, with proceedings ongoing.

Case Hearing Process

Door to door contact

Extensive door-to-door outreach was conducted to ensure that women and families receive accurate information about their rights and available support systems. During this reporting period, the team contacted 22,891 households and shared information about the Women's Panchayat, legal rights, and emergency helpline services. This outreach helped identify vulnerable cases and encouraged new volunteers to participate in community-level support activities.

We spread awareness about Mahila panchayat programme and gender-based violence. Many new volunteers also joined through door to door who provide information to women about Delhi Women Commission and Mahila Panchayat.

Adolescent Awareness and Child Protection

Special focus was placed on adolescent girls to build awareness about gender equality, personal safety, and legal rights. Weekly sessions were conducted to encourage confidence and leadership among adolescent participants. Workshops included discussions, role-plays, and interactive learning methods to help girls understand how to respond to unsafe situations and support their peers.

Awareness sessions on child safety and protection were also conducted in the community. These sessions encouraged children and adolescents to report unsafe behavior and understand available support systems. As a result, children showed improved awareness and willingness to speak about safety concerns.

Regular sessions were conducted with adolescents on important issues such as child trafficking, child marriage, child labour, cybercrime, and gender equality. These sessions helped increase awareness about crime prevention and discrimination. Women were informed about nutrition, institutional healthcare services, and government schemes. As a result, more women began visiting health centers for checkups and nutritional supplements.

Awareness was also created about widow pensions and other financial assistance schemes. Several women were supported in applying for pensions, including widows, elderly women, and abandoned women. These benefits, though modest, provided financial stability and improved confidence among beneficiaries.

Menstrual hygiene awareness sessions were conducted with women and adolescent girls. Approximately 18 meetings were organized, reaching 1,260 participants. These sessions addressed hygiene practices, nutrition, and the removal of social stigma related to menstruation. Sanitary pad distribution was also conducted periodically.

Gender Sensitization Workshops

Two gender sensitization workshops were conducted with 40 women participants in each workshop, to help them understand gender discrimination and its impact on daily life. Discussions focused on social norms, cultural practices, and the importance of equality within families and communities. Participants reported increased confidence in raising their voices against discrimination.

During the year, we organized a one-day workshop with women, in which a total of 40 participants took part. The objective of the program was to raise awareness about gender discrimination and help women develop a deeper understanding of how gender inequality still exists in society through cultural practices and traditional norms. The session emphasized that gender discrimination is often not directly visible, as many women are socially conditioned to accept unequal roles and responsibilities as their duty.

Participants also discussed how the patriarchal social structure influences gender discrimination and contributes to the continued exploitation of girls and women, often in the name of maintaining relationships or being labeled as “good” or “ideal.” The discussions helped women recognize the seriousness of these issues, which are frequently overlooked in society. We also organized poster making, slogan writing and Nukked play activities during this campaign.

Gender Sensitization Workshop

A four-day “Break the Silence Against Domestic Violence” campaign was conducted, including activities such as songs, music, drawing, slogan writing, and self-identity exercises. These activities helped women gain confidence and understand that cases of violence against them can be reported and addressed through the Women’s Panchayat office. Counseling meetings were also organized, where stakeholders from different sectors informed women about the seriousness of domestic violence. Through this campaign, approximately 2,660 people were successfully reached and made aware.

Stake Holders Consultation on Domestic Violence

This meeting is held on 20.12.2025 at the community center Gharauli. The objective of this meeting was to encourage women to openly share their problems and to provide them with information about possible solutions. During the meeting, women were informed that remaining silent is not a solution to any problem. If women raise their voices against violence or injustice, positive change in society is possible.

Various stakeholders Like Counselor from One Stop center Kalyanpuri, Principal and a teacher from MCD school, Representatives from MLA office and Councilor office also contributed in this meeting. All these stakeholder were invited in this consultation, so that they can work at their level for the safety and rights of women. The role of the Women's Panchayat was highlighted, which listens to women's concerns and provides proper guidance and support.

Address - Jhuggi no 7 Gazipur Dairy Farm

Sabir Ali is a 12-year-old boy who was previously studying in Class 4. Due to certain circumstances, he discontinued his education and began working at a local fish market.
